The cost of periodontal treatment depends on your needs and expectations. Our price guide fees reflect the highest quality of care to bring the best results. Periodontal consultation is the first step. Patient's relevant dental radiographs (X-rays) are required to see how much of the bone support has been lost to determine the appropriate treatment with an estimate of cost. The consultation fee includes a full diagnostic report. You should keep in mind that treating gum disease is less costly and better for your health than replacing lost teeth as a result of negligence.
